TURES.

In previous [illegible] we have called the attention of Chicago tax-payers to the extortionate demands made by the different executive boards for the support of their respective departments for the present year. Mayor Medill, about two weeks ago, sent in his estimate, which will give $3,265,000; here, then, would be a portion of the $4,000,000 or $4,500,000 to be levied this year. To this amount, however, must be added the sum of $1,000,000 for the Lake Front Improvement, which it is proposed to add to Union Park, should the citizens [illegible] there is no public authority for this expenditure. If the private property-owners on either of these streets are desirous of ordering these improvements, and will signify their petitions as to [illegible] to be filled, valled, and paved? The board wants a one-mill tax to be levied this year to pay the city's portion of the cost of [illegible] a long list of streets, before they have been submitted to the property-holders for approval, and [illegible] Common Council. This is done, of course, for the purpose of committing the Council, in advance, to ordering the jobs which the contractors have marked out for next year. Every proper thing for the Council to do is to strike out every dollar of this $265,969 item from this year's assessments, and only make provision for paying for street improvements which the property-holders demand, and the Common Council has ordered. When all the streets [illegible] which are already ordered, including those on which work has not been commenced, they will [illegible] as much money as our property-holders and tax-payers can conveniently [illegible] to come up with. The time has come [illegible] to stock up a little in] the break-neck speed of street vailing and filling and wooden block paving.

The board also asks $104,773 to pay for three proposed viaducts—one over the railroad track at Eighteenth, another at Canal and Sixteenth, and a third on West Twelfth street. How much money for land damages will also be wanted is not stated. These jobs had better be postponed a few years, so that the tax-payers' pocketbooks will be disappointed in their anticipations.

The board put in an estimate of $25,000 for bridge repairs, and $37,540 for bridge-tenders' salaries, which is probably all right; but it also asks for another bill, of $12,337, for a lot of new bridges, one of which has been ordered by the Council—that of Halsted street. Most of the others can very properly be postponed to a more favorable season.

Without going into greater detail of the Board of Public Works' estimates, we have shown pretty clearly that the following sums of money may be deducted therefrom and left in the pockets of the tax-payers, viz.:

Opening streets	$125,000
Grade [illegible] crossings	100,000
Paving streets	50,000
Paving alleys	25,000
Sewers	75,000
Sewers, assessment and special	50,000
Water-mains, assessment and special	100,000
Water-mains, general account	100,000
Total	$625,000

Deduct to be raised by taxes, [illegible]

City's portion of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Deduct to be paid by property-holders, but deemed necessary by [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Deduct to be paid by the Canal [illegible]

Proposed by the Board of Public Works, but not yet decided on [illegible]

Total amount chargable to the City [illegible]

Deduct for [illegible] [illegible]

From this statement it will be seen that the Council have put in an estimate for $266,967 for a list of streets and alleys to be filled; valled, sunked, graded, gravelled, ordered, Nicolsoned, planked, etc., not yet ordered by the Council, nor asked for by the property-holders.

$266,967 to be taken out of the general fund, it will cost the proprietors of the county nothing; but millions of special assessments to follow the expense.

Is it right for the Council to levy an income tax on the people, to provide a fund to improve the intersections of streets and alleys, before action is had on the petitions of ordering those streets and alleys to be filled, valled, and paved? The board wants a one-mill tax to be levied this year to pay the city's portion of the cost of [illegible] a long list of streets, before they have been submitted to the property-holders for approval, and [illegible] Common Council. This is done, of course, for the purpose of committing the Council, in advance, to ordering the jobs which the contractors have marked out for next year. Every proper thing for the Council to do is to strike out every dollar of this $266

THE PRELIMINARY INVESTIGATION OF THE TREATY.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The Senate Committee are not sitting to-day, as was the impression, upon the adoption of the resolution of Senator Pomeroy, from a little meeting held over the Treaty question, however, one fact has been developed, and that is, that Secretary Fish has not been asked, nor will he be asked, to appear before the Committee, and writing on the part of the Chairman, and by authority of the Committee, to the effect that the Committee do not desire to have the Secretary present, with a request, even if he were disposed, that he would not be present. It is known that the Secretary is willing to answer any questions that may be propounded to him, and that he is desirous of having the investigation made, and the information given to Senators, that the Committee may be enabled to report upon the matter intelligently. The Committee will not be in session from Saturday until Monday.

IMPORTANT REVENUE DECISIONS.

Assistant Attorney-General Hill has given an opinion, in which the Attorney-General concurs, that under the act of July 14, 1870, Section 20, compromises may be made in cases of fraud upon the revenue, and that the Secretary of the Treasury may, under the act of July 14, 1870, Section 20, compromise cases of fraud upon the revenue, although the fraud may have been committed during the same period; also, that cases of fraud upon the revenue may be compromised before suit is brought, and that the 15th section of the act of 1870 in which it is provided that no suit shall be brought for fraud upon the revenue after three years from the time the fraud was committed, does not apply to cases of fraud committed before the passage of the act.

THE INDIAN DOCTOR

Facts are Stubborn Things.

Proofs Positive that Miraculous Cures are Daily Performed by the Great Indian Doctor, 190 South Clark-st., This City.

There is located in this city, at present, a physician who is making most remarkable cures of all kinds of diseases. He deals with roots, herbs, and barks. This physician is Dr. Price, widely known and famed as the Indian Doctor. His office is daily crowded with patients; and the cures are numerous and real, and, indeed, people interested in all the ills that flesh is heir to, and, in reality, all who are sick, should call on Dr. Price. His books contain the certificates of thousands whom he has cured by his simple remedies, and the records of this city. Among the numberless cases cured, we will mention that of Mrs. Mary Smith, 588, South Clark-st. This lady had been sore on both ankles and afflicted with rheumatism. She was treated by Dr. Price, and, in a few days, all the pain left her, and the sores began to heal, and, in short time, were entirely well. Mrs. Smith is a widow lady, and is highly respected in the neighborhood. Another case is that of Mr. Anderson, No. 29 Alexander-st., this city. This little girl had been troubled with St. Vitus' dance; could scarcely move her limbs; could turn in four months down to one side; cured in four weeks. Mr. Schoenhof, 230 Second-st., had four years, cured. Mr. Russell Robinson, died of consumption. Joseph Robinson, Lake, cured of bleeding by using weeks' treatment. Many others following will speak more for the doctor than anything we can say.

Mrs. Ellen Ryan, Lake, ailed 12 years ago; was taken unwell, not really knowing what was the matter, but supposed it had a snake or worm in the stomach. All efforts to get rid of them were fruitless. I employed at least ten different physicians, each of them the most prominent in some of the cities, without any relief. I became despondent, and gave up all hopes of ever getting well. Hearing Dr. Price, the Indian physician, No. 190 South Clark-st., spoken of, I went and consulted him, and he told me my disease was a snake, and in two days one of the snakes came out, and in two days more another, and in two days more another, making in all three. I have the snakes in bottles, which the doctor has now on exhibition at his office. I am now enjoying good health, and feel thankful for the great relief obtained.

Personally appeared before me, E. B. Mason, Mayor of the city of Chicago, Mrs. Ryan, Lake, the above statement, and made oath that the statement therein made is true.

E. B. MASON,
Mayor of the City of Chicago.

Dr. Price can be consulted daily at his office, No. 190 South Clark-st., from 9 a. m. to 12 m., and from 2 to 4 and 7 to 8 p. m.

WHITE STOCKINGS VS. KEKIONGAS.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., May 13.—The last game between the Chicago White Stockings and the Kekiongas of Fort Wayne, played on the latter's grounds this afternoon, resulted in a victory for the Chicagos by a score of 24 to 2. The game was played in the presence of about 1,500 people, and was a very interesting one to the lovers of the game. The visitors had not practiced much, and were not in their best form, but the home nine were completely outclassed, and could not play ball at all. The Chicagos batted the ball at will, and the Kekiongas could not touch Wood's delivery. The Chicagos made a total of 24 runs, while the Kekiongas could only get two. The Chicagos made 24 runs in the first three innings, and the Kekiongas only got two runs during the entire game. The Chicagos will play a return game here on Monday, and will leave for home on the 4:30 train. The following is the score:

CHICAGO VISITORS ARRESTED.

Yesterday morning, at the Sherman House, Detective Bolton arrested George Wright and Thomas Ryan, who had come to this city from Cincinnati, and who, it is alleged, had robbed a man named Thomas Daly, of $1,000, in that city. Daly was also in the city, and was found by the officers in company with Wright and Ryan. Daly, it appears, had been induced to go to Cincinnati by McAtee, and was there, also, followed by Goldstein, who had sent over $1,000 to Cincinnati by Daly, and who had also followed him to that city. Daly, it appears, was

CHAPTER V.

"Then your pretended absolute is false, and the editor of a newspaper ever would hardly think it worthy a place among the aristocracy."

"Oh! dear Princess," exclaimed Grace and Valentine simultaneously, "you are not serious."

"I gave you notice beforehand," continued the Count.

"What! have you nothing more or return to us something that Tempest Terry, of the Herald, found the handsome widow, resting thereon?"

"Truly, nothing," continued Serge, trying to remember. "However, the particular circumstance of the 'Countess of Valentine' and the 'Marquis of Valentine' has misled me for the present. Grenada, accept a good many times in the same manner, as he remained poor for a long time, passing for a pirate at three or four places, (the Indies) settling by the East India merchants, but with but small success as he was able to save from it—to get a commission to command the station in that under the 'Countess of Valentine,' the latter title of nobility."

"Is it possible," continued Valentine, clasping her hands with astonishment.

"Well, then Valentine, that's the life of a gambler," said the Count. "One cannot but venture upon the perilous pursuit of art without feeling at the bottom of his heart the fibres of success, and without having felt at the beginning of the performance of the rests will not cease this to reproach its pursuit."

"Yes," exclaimed the young widow, more astonished than ever, "what, then, I have spoken! Prince are of those who are ambitious?"

"In the strong city an artist," inquired the Count, who already knew what would be the answer to these questions, and who was only seeking to have Lucien's deep interest in Valentine, was very happy to make her a subject of conversation.

"One has but to look at the dear girl to be assured of it," answered Mrs. Grey, tenderly caressing her young friend. "Valentine is not such a fool as to believe in a painter, an artist of these days—and will bear her debut in the Shakespeare. But to return to our dinner. I am not certain at all that you will hear me play Ariel. Chopin this evening. If you like, Count, I will play you a waltz."

Harper, who during the latter part of the conversation, had sedulously approached Grace, and was whispering in her ear, started to his feet, and, thinking this a favorable opportunity, said:

"Miss Grace, you promised me a waltz."

"Pardon me, Mr. Harper," replied the young lady, "I am engaged to the Count."
